CSC 4055 Computer Architecture

Overview of computer system organization, hardware components, and communications. Introduction to boolean algebra, combinational and sequential logic, arithmetic, the CPU, memory, microprocessors, and interfaces. CISC vs. RISC processors. Practical assembly language programming will be the emphasis with an introduction to microarchitecture and microprogramming on a variety of processors. Basic knowledge of Java, C, or C++ is assumed.